Bright Lights, Big Cities

Each of these urban pieds-à-terre offers a secluded escape in the middle of everything

Los Angeles

The Addison • 724 N. Croft Ave., #305

From $2 million

2,586 SQUARE FEET • 2 BEDROOMS • 2 BATHROOMS

The Addison is a striking collection of townhomes just north of West Hollywood's Melrose Avenue, in the heart of a district renowned for its trend-forward boutiques and restaurants. The modern, two-story unit featured here boasts warm tones and myriad wood finishes, but residents will likely spend much of their time on the generously sized terrace, which comes complete with sofas and a fire pit. The building itself, centered on an atrium courtyard, houses several Wellness Comfort Stations, an idea that seems as quintessentially Los Angeles as the Melrose Place Farmers Market around the corner. theaddisonla.com

Henderson, Nevada

Pinnacle Residences • 552 S. Stephanie St., Tower Residence • $3.75 million

4,100 SQUARE FEET • 4 BEDROOMS • 3 BATHROOMS

Let all the suckers try to rest their heads above the braying crowds and pounding casinos of the Las Vegas Strip; this upcoming development a short hop to the east will offer easy access to the glittering restaurants, shops, and shows, while also providing a soothing retreat in the tony MacDonald Highlands community. The interiors will be awash in designer finishes, while the terrace will offer sweeping views of the city's neon lights and the mountains beyond. Biking and hiking trails and a member's golf, swim, and tennis club will add to the sense of undisturbed relaxation—because while what happens in Vegas stays there, over here it's all just a distant roar. pinnacleresidences.com

New York City

One Essex Crossing • 202 Broome St., #7D

From $1.585 million

791 SQUARE FEET • 1 BEDROOM • 1.5 BATHROOMS

Not many dwellings can claim to have been inspired by Patti Smith, but this Lower East Side residence, part of the Essex Crossing development, does just that. Occupying an entire city block, One Essex Crossing embraces the neighborhood's eclectic heritage, incorporating the new location of the 82-year-old Essex Market. Unlike the area's famed tenements of yore, this building is light-filled, and it even has a 9,000-square-foot interior garden. Designed by style guru Jean Lin—whose muse was punk rock pioneer Smith—this unit combines earthy colors and sleek furnishings, offering a tranquil respite after a night at Beauty & Essex or The Bowery Ballroom, both just blocks away. onessexcrossing.com
